

2016 – 2017 courses from Elly Tobin and Phil Jones

e-mail info@consiliumeducation.com

Trainer	Course	FOCUS
 Elly Tobin	1. EAL across the curriculum Give staff in your school the confidence to teach essential language skills whatever their own subject area. 2 – 5 day courses, depending on needs	With increasing numbers of EAL students attending international schools, it is essential that teachers of all subjects are trained to develop language skills which support academic learning across the curriculum: every lesson is a language lesson. Former Director of Studies at the Sacred Heart School, Tokyo, Elly Tobin has unique experience in training staff in the language skills they need to ensure all students fulfil their potential.
	2. Practical Middle Leadership Prepare for succession management by developing middle leaders for real responsibility. 2 day course	The Joseph Chamberlain Sixth Form College (JCSC) is one of the most successful Sixth Form colleges in the UK. At the heart of its culture of achievement is its approach to succession management and the development of middle leaders. Elly’s course looks not only at the theoretical ideas that define leadership, but also at practical ways of mentoring effective middle leaders while developing their confidence to lead under pressure.
 Phil Jones	Duty of Care: Safety and Security for International Schools Manage risk by creating a culture of care and effective security management. 1 – 2 day courses	In 2016, the security implications of “duty of care” must be at the heart of any school’s strategic plan. With his experience, first in the British military and then as security consultant to high profile NGOs in a variety of settings around the world, Phil Jones now specialises in advising international schools. This course helps school leaders to develop effective security planning and risk management, while developing the culture of care at their school.